

Students of History study how the world was, in order to better understand how the world is. The political, cultural, economic, religious, intellectual, and social aspects of our development, as well as the different interpretations of those historical events, are the key areas of our study. Students will take foundational courses in American and World History, as well as courses in historical research. These, combined with the courses in the core curriculum, give the history student a strong base for both their undergraduate and future study. The program is designed so that students are able to minor in areas of their choosing and select electives that will help to prepare them for graduate school in history, law, or teaching. Students interested in law or teaching would work closely with the program director in choosing the proper electives or minor to prepare them for advanced study.

Named One of “America’s Best Colleges” by U.S. News & World Report

Cazenovia College is an independent, coeducational college, located in Cazenovia, New York, offering baccalaureate programs in the liberal arts and professional studies.

CAREER POSSIBILITIES

After studying in a field that requires rigorous critical thinking, writing, and speaking skills, history students are employable in virtually every field of endeavor. You will find history students working in business, communication, publishing, and research settings – all of which are available to the Cazenovia College history student through internship opportunities. History students also go on to gain their certification in Secondary History/Social Studies and to law school—planning for both of these opportunities through minors and work with academic advisors available through the Cazenovia College History program.
